Estim gay gay cum free Ads Model Some women are able to orgasm without the need for clitoral stimulation. From as early as 23 to as late as 66 years old, some women have experienced orgasm without the clitoris getting any direct or direct stimulation. This is due to a clitoral orgasm not being the only way to orgasm, where every part of the body can orgasm. It is even more common in women who have not yet begun puberty or in people who have never had any sexual contact. Women may lack sensitivity to the clitoris, or not experience the needed amount of direct stimulation to come to orgasm. These women can also learn to orgasm using only vaginal stimulation. Some women have never experienced orgasm. In this case, they have to learn many other sexual positions, add sexual stimulation to other parts of the body, or see a sex therapist. The stimulation that is needed to come to orgasm varies depending on the woman. Prior to puberty, the clitoris and vagina will not be fully developed. This is why many inexperienced women need a great deal of direct clitoral stimulation or direct clitoral stimulation in conjunction with vaginal stimulation to cause their clitoris to become erect. They may not have any erections prior to the stimulation. The stimulated area may stay small and very sensitive. There are many ways to help a woman orgasm with little to no clitoral stimulation. Some women are able to come to orgasm with their eyes closed. At the start of the 20th century,
